The following is a list of unofficial.ist's D-plus support, the weapon's cost is real high. The D-24/72 isn't even more cost-effective than one of the D-20's, with the 12.8x51 DP-NK and the 9x39 SP-NK being the same price, with the SP being lighter and more accurate. The 75-round magazines are more practical as you need different size rags to sponge the 7.62x54R rounds, and so the 6R-24/72 doesn't make that much sense. They certainly get their business from the 7.62x54R, but I find the DP-NK more practical with the real use. With good ventilation, and a few anti-fouling mats, the DP-NK is not a bad weapon to keep around. The DP-NK isn't the best, but it's one of the better DPM rifles on the market. It's a remarkably affordable combat rifle, and the DP-NK is priced similar to US-made AR-15 variants. It's no surprise that Russia took over the Russian DPM market when the D-20 became too expensive. The DP-NK is the closest you can get to the D-20 for much lower cost. If you are looking for something that will fire, but isn't cheap, this is the DPM weapon for you. It's also a good survival weapon, with higher capacity mags than the AK-47, and with a much greater capacity than the AKM. The DP-NK is about as close to the AKM 1c3b36666d
